391 Blood Donors Start Big Bleed In Union Clinic

McGill's Engineers, picking up where they left off last year, have taken the lead in the 1957 Blood Drive. After the first day, the Plumber's score, including credits for students ineligible to give blood, totals 214. Their nearest rival, Arts and Science, has 168.

More Blood

391 pints of blood were donated yesterday, compared with the 364 collected on the first day of last year's Drive. However, a spokesman for the Clinic noted that more students must contribute daily if the objective of 2200 pints is to be reached.

In his opening remarks yesterday, Wallace Collie, Provincial President of the Canadian Red Cross, reported that Montreal hospitals are 300 operations behind schedule for lack of blood. He emphasized the urgent need, and urged students to contribute.

First Donor

The first donor was Dr. C. D. Solin, Assistant Dean of Arts and Science. He was followed by Professor Kierans, Director of the School of Commerce, Dean Mordell of Engineering, and Carol Buckingham, Queen of the 1956 Winter Carnival.

The Blood Donor Clinic, located on the second floor of the Union, will be open daily for the remainder of the week, from 9 am to 5 pm. There is a comfortable waiting room for donors, and coffee, biscuits, doughnuts and cigarettes will be provided.

Med Undergrads Support Demands In Debate Today

"Is the Medical Undergraduate Society justified in asking for more money from the Students' Executive Council?" This question will be the subject of a Public Speaking Forum sponsored by the Debating Union today at 1 p.m. in the Union Ballroom. The subject will be discussed by a panel of those most concerned with it: Stuart Smith, President of the McGill Students' Union and Vice-President of the Students' Society, and Roy Heenan, a first year Law Student and past Arts and Science representative on the S.E.C. will present the point of view of the S.E.C.; the position of the M.U.S. will be stated by Garth Mosher, president of that organization and another member of the M.U.S. executive.

Proposed Amendments

A meeting of the Students' Society has been called for Nov. 6 to discuss and vote on the proposed amendments to the Society's constitution which would give the M.U.S. $5.00 more from the fees of each medical student; this amount would be taken from the $9.00 which presently goes to the S.E.C.

Preliminary Account

Stuart Smith and Garth Mosher have already given a preliminary account of the situation in the Daily, and they will probably follow the lines of these arguments. Students will be given an opportunity to ask questions of the panelists; the proceedings will be chaired by the President of the Debating Union, David Freedman.

All students are invited to attend in order to acquaint themselves with the problem before the general meeting of the Students' Society.

Cultural Decline Chided By Rector

Universities today are sacrificing cultural education for material contributions to civilization, Msgr. Alphonse-Marie Parent, rector of Laval University, told a meeting of the Canadian Club yesterday.

"The cultural decline of our universities," he declared, "and the formation of men more and more narrow-minded, if not hostile to what really constitutes culture, has its real foundation in a scepticism towards knowledge which deals with objects that we cannot transform and whose acquisition is sufficient unto itself. 'Universities,' he continued, 'are becoming more and more purely accidental aggregates of professional departments and of highly specialized techniques, working independently from one another and whose importance is measured by their contribution to the material aspect of civilization.'

Technical Instruction

He agreed with C. L. Burton, president of Simpson's Ltd., who said "technical instruction is not sufficient. We should have students of an alert mind, capable of writing a poem, of making a clear statement, of discussing intelligently the problems of the day. We can use... modern apparatus to take the place of muscular strength, but we cannot find a substitute for the human mind."

Msgr. Parent declared that special emphasis must be placed on the recruiting and preparation of professors sufficiently intelligent and unselfish, who must be guaranteed an independence from the cares of practical life required by their cultural task.

"The interest manifested by our governing bodies, together with the creation of the Council of Arts of Canada, and the more frequent meetings between men of industry and university personnel, justify the most sanguine hopes," he declared.

ELECTION BREAKDOWN

At press time the known results were as follows:

For Mayor:
Senator Fournier ..... 83,229 votes
Jean Drapeau ..... 79,384 votes
Mayor Elect: Sarto Fournier
Councillors:
Civic Action League ..... 31 seats
Greater Montreal Rally .... 22 seats
Independents ..... 13 seats

More Private Support Urged Towards Quebec Education

Sherbrooke. — Premier Maurice Duplessis yesterday urged wealthy French-speaking Canadians to be more generous towards Quebec's educational institutions.

Speaking at the blessing and official inauguration of Sherbrooke University's new science building, the premier said the cause of education deserved the financial support of all wealthy citizens.

"We have in Quebec French-speaking Canadians who are rich," he said. "These persons should realize that by helping our educational institutions they are making a truly worthy investment."

Mr. Duplessis said no worldly possession had the value of education. The education a person acquires is a capital that can never be lost, he said.

The premier said Quebec's rapid growth and expansion required the spending of large sums of money. He said his government wanted to give as much as possible to education at all levels.

"Of course," he said, "our generosity must be conditioned by our financial means."

Mr. Duplessis said Lands and Forests Minister John Bourque, the member for Sherbrooke, would introduce legislation early during the coming session to speed up payment of the government's $750,000 grant for the newly-completed science building.

He also promised to do "everything possible" to give Sherbrooke University another grant for construction of new quarters for the Faculty of Commerce.

The premier said the new science building — the first construction on the university's near 500-acre campus — answered a long-felt need.

"We should have more French-speaking engineers in the Province of Quebec," he said.

Numerous competitions are being held between faculties, fraternities and residences for a number of trophies which are on display in the Union. These contests are decided on the basis of percentage of students participating. All students, both undergraduate and graduate, as well as extension students and members of the Faculty are eligible, except for those under 18 and those who have suffered from anemia, jaundice, or malaria. Those who are ineligible should notify the Clinic and thus receive credit for their faculty, residence or fraternity.

Drive Ends Friday

The figures below are those obtained up to 5 pm yesterday. They represent the total of the number of donors and the number of ineligible students who have registered. These totals will be adjusted in accordance with a handicapping system based on the enrollment in each competing group. No adjusted results will be available until the end of the Drive, on Friday.

There'll Be Changes Made

As we go to press the election results are being tabulated; and Montreal has a new Mayor. The people of this city have indicated that they did not appreciate the words and works of Jean Drapeau. He was a controversial mayor, and it was difficult to be impartial to him. He based his campaign on a promise to abolish that most delectable of Montreal phenomena — vice, and no one can be neutral to vice. Though there have been many statements to the contrary, anyone with an eye for a roulette wheel or illegal drink or leg will attest that these have been rarer in the Drapeau reign. Whether or not Montreal applauds this rarity the election does not show. There was no landslide. It was a shift.

Montreal will now be in an interesting position. The city with perhaps the most cockeyed system of government in the world will be governed by a mayor who will possibly not get the support of a hostile council. The new mayor should endeavour to institute changes in the system. His advocacy of a new form of metropolitan government would suggest that he is contemplating such changes.

Whether or not the city will be better under Senator Fournier, only time will be able to tell. Mr. Drapeau gave his best to his city. He has done many things for the city, and its citizens must be grateful for this.

But in the quietest and most orderly election in many years, Montreal has chosen a new mayor, and while this is an important honor for Senator Fournier, it is a grave responsibility. He must not let his supporters down.

We say a nostalgic "merci" to a defeated and colorful mayor and wish his successor all good fortune.

Give A Listen

We met a young lady the other day who was getting the best of both worlds. Despite the crowded timetable of an Honors course in the Faculty of Science, she had opted to audit one of the arts courses. Not only that, but this particular young lady was very often able to out-arts the arts-men in contributing to discussions. The vision of a budding scientist more than able to hold his or her own in an arts course is one that is looked upon with suspicion, if not with terror, by arts people. The only defence they have is to accuse the interlopers of either trying to obtain a pseudo-intellectual education, or of chasing some man or woman.

In theory, any registered student is entitled to audit any lecture given in the university. In practise very little auditing goes on, most students being content to put in the time on their required courses, and not "burden" themselves with other courses. And yet, some of these courses, if put on as a public lecture series, would attract many students, because their presentation makes them easy to assimilate, and their content is interesting. More important than the mere matter of interest in another course is the chance to acquire a rounded education, and a better appreciation of the humanities or the sciences.

In a world where the humanities and the sciences seem to be becoming more and more mutually unintelligible, the need for the student of either discipline to keep a flexible mind, and to gain at least a smattering of knowledge about subjects other than those listed as course requirements would appear to be obvious. The students' willingness to step outside the limits of mere requirements, and to find out how much other courses have to offer is one real measure of their ability to get a real university education.

Ghana Seeks A New Democracy

by G. K. Ayivor

As a Ghanaian, I suppose it is not presumptuous on my part to state that I am in a good position to appraise Donald Johnson's article which appeared in the McGill Daily of October 16, 1957. In short, the material of his article was quite impressive. His great care to put the various problems clearly across and to refrain from presenting any facts tinged with any personal colours is praiseworthy. However, the article raised some pertinent questions which I propose to discuss here.

It is accurate to note as Johnson pointed out that Ghana is far from being one homogenous nation. One would expect that the different tribal identities having been under British rule for more than a century would have been brought together. The four main areas — The Gold Coast Colony, Ashanti, British Togoland and The Northern Territories — were administered by one central government. Sadly enough the Colonial Government Policy did not apparently help to develop a National Unity. On the contrary the Colonial Government pursued a policy of divide and rule. The tribal feelings and regional interests of the different groups were highly played upon through the agency of the traditional rulers. One of the most significant achievements of Dr. Nkrumah's Convention People's Party was to bridge the gulf between the divergent regional and tribal groups. Thus in 1956, barely eight years after the party was formed, the various factions were considerably united under the national banner of the C.P.P., and demanded independence. Meanwhile, the Imperial government had placed the traditional rulers in a position which made them feel that they were playing an important role in the governing of their respective regions. A few hand-picked chiefs sat in the legislative council of Ghana

(then the Gold Coast) but had practically no power to influence decisions made by the council. It is natural therefore that some of the chiefs, especially in Ashanti, where they were quite powerful, caught in the midst of rapid changes became rather wary. They felt their position as traditional rulers was at stake. The opposition, headed by Dr. Busia quickly seized upon the issue and made a major political game out of it. Whether Dr. Busia is advocating that the chiefs should hold their status quo, or that the government should uphold the institution of chieftaincy for its cultural value is not altogether clear.

In the opinion of this writer, there is no real need for Ghana to adopt "Western Democracy" in a book-copy fashion. Ghana has her own peculiar problems and the ideals of democracy are inevitably bound to be limited by these very problems. This may probably sound heretical. But anyone who is familiar with British Colonial Government can appreciate the crux in this statement. This writer remembers his high school days when he listened to eloquent lectures on democracy during Civics lessons only to look around and question himself whether those principles of a democratic system preached in the classroom were meant only as part of academic discipline? For the Government of Ghana was then far from being democratic. The recent deportation of journalist Bankole Timothy cannot justifiably be taken as an indication that Dr. Nkrumah's government is attempting to suppress freedom of the press. No responsible government can afford to stand by unconcerned when this so-called freedom of the press is continually misused to foment trouble among the different sections of the citizens. The Colonial Government, who were no doubt quite experienced in the traditional democratic system in Britain, found it necessary and right to introduce a Sedition Bill under which any person who published a seditious article in the country laid himself open to strict action (including exile and deportation.) This is no suggestion by any means that the government of Ghana could be justified if they adopt without tangible reasons any of the undesirable policies bequeathed by colonial tutelage, otherwise the achievement of independence would have been in vain.

It is fair to note that Britain had succeeded in a large measure to introduce democratic institutions in Ghana. However, it must be remembered that the first general election based on adult suffrage was held in Ghana only in 1948. This experiment in democracy has so far been a success, though one must admit that things are not yet altogether smooth. There is a long way to go, but Ghana is diligently learning her lessons. Is it not the right of man to make mistakes and to learn from his mistakes? It is perhaps too early to say what may become of democracy in Ghana. Nonetheless, in the opinion of this writer, who understands better the deep causes of the problems in his country, any apprehension that Ghana may go from colonialism to dictatorship is simply untenable.

Letters To The Editor

20-20 Vision

Sir:

As an ardent reader and supporter of the "McGill Daily" I wish to voice a strong complaint about your choice of words in a recent editorial.

"Blindly Catholic" is the phrase to which I refer. Surely your enthusiasm for Maurice Richard's great feat rendered your perceptions a bit fuzzy.

Perhaps the words were not used in the damaging sense which one understands at first glance but I assure you that your Roman Catholic readers, both French and English, deplore the use of such unfortunate adjectives which so easily can be misunderstood.

Some readers could very easily make the mistake of thinking you imply that Catholics are "per se" blind. Nothing, I am sure, could be farther from your intention, but words which suggest such implications have no place on the editorial page of the "Daily".

Hillel Begins Study Series

The Cultural Committee of Hillel Foundation, under the chairmanship of George Rosenberg, B.C.L. 1 and Gita Kizell, B.A. 3, has announced a new series entitled "Patterns of Man's Destiny." The series will take the form of noon-hour discussions to be held on alternate Tuesdays at Hillel House, and will involve a preliminary exploration of the various beliefs through which man has attempted to understand himself and his world.

The series will be inaugurated today by Dr. Wilfred Cantwell Smith, W.M. Birks Professor of Comparative Religion and Director of the Institute of Islamic Studies at McGill University. Professor Smith, a graduate of the Universities of Toronto and Princeton, is widely known for his studies in the field of comparative religion. He will lead off the series in a discussion of Hinduism entitled "Patterns of Man's Destiny: According to Hindu Tradition".

Gals Judge China For Women's Union

About 250 girls are needed by the Women's Union to take part in a china survey which will be conducted by the Royal Doulton China Co. on Thursday, Oct. 31 in the R.V.C. Common Room.

This survey, sponsored by the Women's Union, is being conducted by the Royal Doulton Co. to determine the tastes of the modern woman in dinnerware as to pattern, colour, shape, etc. The various dinnerware patterns will be on display in the Common Room, and each girl will examine them for several minutes, and then explain which ones she prefers and why. For every girl who takes part in the survey the Royal Doulton Co. will pay the Women's Union $1.00, and this money will be used by the Women's Union for the scholarship fund which was started last year.

This Royal Doulton china display was also held last year, and approximately $165.00 was raised by the Women's Union for the scholarship fund. Any girls who are interested in taking part in this survey and earning $1.00 for the Women's Union may do so any time from 9 to 5 pm on Thursday. Anyone wishing further details may contact Helgi Ulk, chairman of the display, at GL 1468 or AV. 8-3818.

Three Undergrads Profit By Hobby

by Peter Kilburn

Three enterprising undergraduates last year pooled forces to form the McGill Recording Service. It was these three who only last spring made two recordings of the highly successful McGill musical, "My Fur Lady", which has already sold 3,500 copies.

The three, Colin Kerr (President), Brian Smith (General Manager), and Ken Davis (Comptroller), who started out as hopeful as they were inexperienced, now run a business which possesses valuable equipment and the know-how necessary for making first-class records.

The idea of forming a recording club was born over a Douglas Hall piano. Kerr and Smith, banging out a vibrant chopsticks, were simultaneously inspired in the realization that here was beautiful music being wasted. Their reactions to the idea were decisive and immediate. They would find someone to handle the financial side and unite to form a recording club. The club has since been incorporated.

This was a completely original enterprise for the three. Kerr hails from Rome, Italy, Smith from Malaga, Spain, and Davis from Toronto. A single attempt preceded them in this field, an unsuccessful project by three students in 1913.

The first month was extremely hard. It was a time for concentrated 'leg-work'. Permits had to be secured, SEC permission sought, and equipment hunted up. Nearly everyone questioned expressed admiration for the plan but few gave it much hope for success. Mr. Lorne Gales, Director of the Graduates' Society, was one of those few. The MRS members are unanimous in naming him their most helpful supporter.

Their first equipment for recording on tape was partly bought and partly home-made. Kerr, whose interests have centred on electronics for years, constructed much of the equipment. As resources grew the trio decided to obtain better apparatus. Consequently the rented apparatus of professional standard acquired for the first recording of My Fur Lady (LPM3) gave way to the more nearly perfect and more expensive set-up used for LPM5. This borrowed equipment was of the highest standard and it was decided that it would be wise to buy it in view of the highly successful career of LPM5. The actual process of pressing the records is done by Compo Co. of Lachine.

Kerr, Smith and Davis stress the fact that although their hobby brings

Sandy Sandzelius Leader In Tight Scoring Parade

Another great Saturday for McGill's flashy Sandy Sandzelius put him on top of the Intercollegiate scoring race. The starry Redmen backfielder collected one touchdown, two converts, and a rouge to up his total for the season to 29 points.

McGill's rookie end, Joe Poirier went scoreless against The Golden Gaels, but came very close to paydirt when he dropped a pass in the end-zone. He is now second in the race, five points behind Sandy. Tied with Poirier, is Western's Dale Creighton, who also was kept off the scoresheet this weekend.

Bill Britton, of Western, has three touchdowns for 18 points. He is followed by Johnny Bennett, "Wild" Willie Casanova and Neil Desborough who each have 12 points.

Everything seems to point to the final game of the season, when The Redmen will meet the Mustangs in London on the ninth of November. This game should decide the Intercollegiate League Scoring leader.

These are the official MFWA statistics:

'Y' Blues Win Two From Red Polomen

by Leonard Waxman

The Y.M.H.A. Blues dealt the McGill polomen a twin setback in an exhibition water polo double-header at the Davis "Y" last night. The "Y" juniors showed too much experience for the McGill intermediates in the opener, defeating them by a score of 4-1. In the nightcap, the senior "Y" Blues edged the Redmen 8-6 in a hard fought game.

Coach Jerry Shiller's inters stood up very well in their first taste of competition. Many of the boys were playing under actual game conditions for the first time. The players also found that the smaller "Y" pool hampered their style.

The "Y" junior goals were scored by Mike Pascal with two, I. Madew, and Bob Markovits. The lone McGill marker was scored by Jimmy Gaston.

The senior game which followed was a see-saw affair all the way. Normie Goldberg opened the scoring for the "Y" in the first quarter. Center half Bill Manning put McGill into the lead with two quick goals on hard accurate shots from far out. Goldberg, not to be outdone, scored three unanswered goals from close in to put the "Y" ahead 4-2 at the end of the quarter.

Evelyn Scores

Charlie Evelyn scored a nifty marker for the Redmen, which was nullified when George Sevcik dented the twine with a cannon-like shot for the Blues. Evelyn and Sevcik again traded goals to make the halftime score 7-4 in favour of the "Y".

Goals were at a premium in the second half as the checking became very close. Evelyn scored his third goal of the game in the third quarter on a neat passing play with Serge Morin and Bernie Toporowski. Minutes later Pascal countered the last goal for the "Y".

Gordon Phillips brought McGill closer in the last frame, but that was all the scoring in the game as the Red crew couldn't penetrate the tight "Y" defense.

Recording Service

in money; it remains nevertheless a hobby. "Our main object is not to make money but to produce as perfect records as possible", was Smith's explanation. "We think that from now on our records will be of a good quality as those put out by top recording companies".

The fame of this highly successful enterprise has spread far and wide. Although LPM3 sold its 1000 copies here in Montreal, LPM5 was due for some travelling. Many copies found their way right across Canada and the USA. "This summer we received a letter from the Canadian Ambassador to Greece asking us to send him along a record," said Davis.

"What do I like about the Bell? The way your progress is encouraged!...

"When I joined the Bell, I was soon given several projects to work on. True, there was always a more experienced engineer available for guidance, but at the earliest practical moment I was 'on my own'.

"Before long, I was working on special projects involving daily contact with other engineers and telephone people all over North America.

"My progress, meanwhile, has been helped by several courses which include one on departmental administration. I found there was more to being an engineer at the Bell than just solving technical problems!

"I wanted a job where ambition would be encouraged. I've found that — and a friendly atmosphere in which to work, too — at the Bell!"
